Modeled specifically for the power generation industry, this course will give the participant a strong overview of project management fundamentals and how to apply them to real world projects. The content is in compliance with the PMBOK® (Project Management Body of Knowledge) as published by PMI (Project Management Institute).

The participant will learn how to determine project scope, develop a budget and schedule, anticipate and minimize potential problems using risk management, communicate more effectively, and become an effective project leader. These topics will be illustrated with real case studies and reinforced with class team projects. The course will also illustrate how projects coincide with company policy and strategies, helping the project leader understand how projects usually involve cross-company departments and expertise.
